

LEXINGTON SYMPHONY

Holiday Pops

This year, the Lexington Symphony performed their Holiday Pops Concert to capacity crowds at Cary Hall. The afternoon concert, introduced to accommodate busy parents and young children was a huge success! Hundreds of eager children were wide-eyed as seasonal songs filled the air. The audience joined in for a traditional sing-a-long before Santa arrived from the North Pole and was overwhelmed by the crush of anxious children.

The orchestra was conducted by Jonathan McPhee, Lexington's beloved Maestro. McPhee is one of New England's leading musical figures and is also Music Director for Boston Ballet, the Nashua Symphony in New Hampshire and the Longwood Symphony Orchestra.

Photos by Frank Caliri and Jim Shaw

